Praying the Psalms

Steve Picard

Tuesday, October 13
7:00 pm, via Zoom

The Book of Psalms is a unique collection of 150 song-prayers of Israel. The original melodies have been lost to history, but the lyrics have been prayed to new melodies continuously by the Church through the ages.

In this presentation, Mr. Picard will talk about what makes these prayers so special, why they should be important to us, which ones were special to the Church in the past and which are favored today, and how we might appropriate these biblical prayers as our own.

Psalm 23: I Shall Live in the House of the Lord

Michel Guimont

I shall live in the house of the Lord all the days of my life.

1. The Lord is my shepherd; there is nothing I shall want.
Fresh and green are the pastures where he gives me repose.
Near restful waters he leads me; he revives my soul.
2. He guides me along the right path, for the sake of his name.
Though I should walk in the valley of the shadow of death,
no evil would I fear for you are with me.
Your crook and your staff will give me comfort.
3. You have prepared a table for me in the sight of my foes.
My head you have anointed with oil; my cup is overflowing.
4. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life.
In the Lord's own house shall I dwell for length of days unending.

Spiritual Communion

O God, you are my God,
 it is you I seek!
 For you my body yearns;
 for you my soul thirsts,
 in the land parched,
 lifeless and without water.
 I look to you in the sanctuary
 to see your power and glory.
 For your love is better than life,
 my lips shall ever praise you.
 I will bless you as long as I live;
 I will lift up my hands,
 calling on your name.
 My soul shall be filled,
 as with choice food,
 with joyous lips my mouth
 shall praise you!
 I think of you upon my bed,
 I remember you through
 the watches of night.
 You indeed are my savior and,
 in the shadow of your wings,
 I shout for joy.
 My soul clings fast to you;
 your right hand upholds me.

Come to the Feast

In both the first reading, from Isaiah, and in the Gospel, the topic is feasting. God is holding a big bash, the very biggest – no exaggeration here – and we’ve all received an invitation!

Isaiah writes for people in the king’s court. Food would have been abundant there under almost all circumstances except, perhaps, in time of war and siege. Matthew’s Gospel, written five to seven centuries later, was addressed to ordinary people, most of whom would have lived very close to hunger. Most people seldom had meat, except on special feast days, and survived on a diet of bread with the fruits and vegetables of the season. The food would either require hours of preparation, or purchase from a tavern or restaurant with high prices. Bad weather like drought or flooding, field pests and warfare made famine an ever-present possibility.

If you recall when, out of his compassion for the hungry crowds, Jesus multiplied the loaves and fishes, and everyone ate their fill and there were baskets of food left over, people continued to follow Jesus for days, hoping for a repeat of the feasting. Jesus tried to redirect their attention to the eternal questions and the bread of heaven – see John, chapter 6 – but his followers’ bellies got the best of them. They had lived so long with hunger it was hard for them to shift from that focus.

Even today, access to food depends on where you live. Although the statistics I’m giving vary from one version to the next, the following seems to be in the middle of the scholarly offerings. In the United States, average Americans spends roughly 6.4% of their income for food. In 1900 AD, only 120 years ago, providing food for a family consumed as much as 43% of wages, whereas housing was only 23%. Things certainly have flipped.

In Nigeria today, on the other hand, each household spends only half of what we would on food in a year. There, however, that lesser amount consumes 56.4% percent of most household’s earnings. Food is a much greater concern for the average person in Nigeria than it is for us in the United States.

I share these stats just to give us an idea of how different the whole question of feeding one’s family can be from time to time, and place to place.

In both Isaiah and Matthew, there is a banquet prepared of rich food and pure choice wines, of slaughtered calves and fattened cattle. For their audiences, these images are very suitable metaphors for heaven where, finally, there would be enough for everyone. The wonderful thing is that we’re all invited.

We live in such abundance that we may have to reach a little to understand how these feasts would have affected the original audiences. In Jesus’ parable, in particular, it would have been disturbing that people bypassed the opportunity repeatedly offered them. The incomprehensible behavior of the invited, but unwilling, guests deeply offends the king.

The parable is actually speaking of the history of God’s chosen people, always invited into an eternal relationship with God, but often distracted by the world’s affairs. Can we honestly say that it is any different with us? The invitation still stands; the feast is still ready; the king has dispatched his servants to bring us together. The experience is going to be rich; the king offers the best of what is possible; the reward is eternal. Is it possible that we, too, are too busy to respond?

I encourage you to spend some time in contemplation of what God wants for you, and with you. We are invited, even now, to set our busy and important affairs aside, to attend to our Lord who wants our company. Perhaps, in this time of quarantining, we might actually have time to spend with the Lord?

Siempre adelante,

Matthew 22:1-14 ~ Come to the feast

The invitation to God's kingdom is for all, not just a select few. While God's generosity is abundant, there are things we need to do. Most importantly is to show up but then we must come ready, truly ready of heart, mind, and soul to fully experience the celebration. What do you think this means? How are you showing up and preparing yourself for true participation?

Life Centers of Ventura County

Safer For All Baby Bottle Boomerang is going on now. Even during a pandemic, the work continues at Life Centers, serving pregnant women needing medical services, confused, surprised, angry, in troubled relationships, anxious, and fearful. Help with information, pregnancy tests, counseling, ultrasounds, vitamins, material goods, and referrals for services, all at no cost, given professionally with great compassion. Donate online at www.vclifecenters.com/events or by mail.

Twenty-eighth Sunday in Ordinary Time

It's a good idea to exercise daily to strengthen our bodies.

It's even more important to ask God every day to fill us with inner strength!

Look inside the jump rope.

Darken out all the lowercase letters.

When you're done, you will find what Paul discovered (Philippians 4:13)

It's true for us, too!
